transformative learning involves experiencing a deep structural shift in the basic premises of thought feelings and actions it is a shift of consciousness that dramatically and permanently alters our way of being in the world such a shift involves our understanding of ourselves and our self locations our relationships with other humans and with the natural world our understanding of relations of power in interlocking structures of class race and gender our body awarenesses our visions of alternative approaches to living and our sense of possibilities for social justice and peace and personal joy the editors of this collection make several challenges to the existing field of transformative learning the first is to theoreticians who have attempted to describe the nature of transformative learning without regard to the content of transformative learning the editors argue that transformative learning theory cannot be constructed in a content neutral or context free way their second challenge which assumes the importance content for transformative learning is to educators as practitioners the editors argue that transformative learning requires new educational practices consistent with the content arts based research and arts based teaching learning practices are one example of such new educational practices education for the soul or spiritual practices such as meditation or modified martial arts or indigenous peoples forms of teaching learning is another example each article in the collection presents a possible model of these new practices the authors also examine the influence of disability policies and programs on all of these factors and suggest future directions book jacket there are many fine philosophical and theological engagements with the works of john caputo he is one of our most serious philosophical theologians but he s also hilariously funny to read caputo is to encounter someone who wants to move you to grasp your attention your humor your creativity because what he s looking for is not another philosophical couch potato he s looking for someone who s open to being moved to put down the book even his book especially his book and risk reaching out to help another one who is other one at the margins of this culture he s interested in the kind of courage that there is far too little of and conventional religion he suggests has more than its share of the blame the more familiar one becomes with his work the more one wonders why caputo in all his emphasis upon hermeneutics and responsiveness to the call of the other seemed not to see or perhaps want to claim the many rhetorical gifts in his possession the many rhetorical gifts at work in his writing even as caputo is a master of all things hermeneutical he claims ignorance on all things rhetorical viewing the word itself through an old lens of adding mere ornamentation what he calls rouge to beautify the basic claim bringing the last forty years of work in rhetorical studies to bear on caputo's texts the author has written this book in hopes of convincing caputo and his many students that he made whether he sees it or not what can only be called the rhetorical turn in philosophy and theology
