joseph schumpeter oscillated in his view about the type of economic system that was most conducive to growth in his 1911 treatise schumpeter argued that a more decentralized and turbulent industry structure where the process of creative destruction was triggered by vigorous entrepreneurial activity was the engine of economic growth but by 1942 schumpeter had modified his theory arguing instead that a more centralized and stable industry structure was more conducive to growth according to schumpeter 1942 p 132 under the managed economy there was little room for entrepreneurship because innovation itself is being reduced to routine technological progress is increasingly becoming the business of teams of trained specialists who turn out what is required to make it work in predictable ways p 132 schumpeter 1942 reversed his earlier view by arguing that the integration of knowledge creation and appropriation bestowed an inherent innovative advantage upon giant corporations since capitalist enterprise by its very achievements tends to automatize progress we conclude that it tends to make itself superfluous to break to pieces under the pressure of its own success the national immunization system has achieved high levels of immunization particularly for children however this system faces difficult challenges for the future significant disparities remain in assuring access to recommended vaccines across geographic and demographic populations these disparities result in part from fragmented public© private financing in which a large number of children and adults face limited access to immunization services access for adults lags well behind that of children and rates of immunizations for those who are especially vulnerable because of chronic health conditions such as diabetes or heart and lung disease remain low financing vaccines in the 21st century assuring access and availability addresses these challenges by proposing new strategies for assuring access to vaccines and sustaining the supply of current and future vaccines the book recommends changes to the advisory committee on immunization practices acip the entity that currently recommends vaccines and calls for a series of public meetings a post implementation evaluation study and development of a research agenda to facilitate implementation of the plan what does the future hold for the welfare state in the post industrial 21st century political and economic forces are threatening the taxation regimes of highly globalised capitalist societies prompting an urgent debate around the function of the welfare state and how we pay for it in a challenge to current policy and thinking david byrne and sally ruane deploy the concepts and analytical tools of marxist political economy to better understand these developments and the possibilities they present for social change using the snp in scotland as an illustrative case study current debates are related to a critical understanding of the relationship between taxation and spending issues that are fundamental to early 21st century politics and the future of the welfare state
