by the middle of 2007 afghans had become increasingly disillusioned with a state building process that had failed to deliver the peace dividend that they were promised for many afghans the most noticeable change in their lives since the fall of the taliban has been an acute deterioration in security conditions whether it is predatory warlords the taliban led insurgency the burgeoning narcotics trade or general criminality the threats to the security and stability of afghanistan are manifold the response to those threats both in terms of the international military intervention and the donor supported process to rebuild the security architecture of the afghan state known as security sector reform ssr has been largely insufficient to address the task at hand nato has struggled to find the troops and equipment it requires to complete its afghan mission and the ssr process from its outset has been severely under resourced and poorly directed compounding these problems rampant corruption and factionalism in the afghan government particularly in the security institutions have served as major impediments to reform and a driver of insecurity this paper charts the evolution of the security environment in afghanistan since the fall of the taliban assessing both the causes of insecurity and the responses to them through this analysis it offers some suggestions on how to tackle afghanistan s growing security crisis this paper explores the background to turkey s kurdish perspectives an account and analysis of more recent developments and a consideration of some possible futures and the factors that might encourage or thwart their emergence
